

Seeking Technical Sales Engineer (Field)

No agencies please

Working with our US and European based vendor partners, PSI Technologies Ltd are engineering innovators within UK manufacturing industry. Our business is all about creating production efficiencies and reducing maintenance.

We're looking for an engineering professional, who is either in a field sales role or who feel they have the attributes to move into a field sales role. The area available is the East of England. It is anticipated that you already live in the area.

Requirements

- The applicant must be UK based. Although we collaborate with international partners, our markets are in the UK.
- An engineering background and qualifications are important, as our sales process is highly technical, and project driven. It is also multi-industry, so an inquiring mind as how industry 'works' is part of the experience/aptitude sought.

Benefits to you

- With our partners, we invest in world class product training. You will not only learn about the product, but you'll learn about how our sales process works and why it is so successful. This will help you sell into a new and existing customer base.
- It is, quite literally, 'a world of opportunity', for our sales team spend time and share ideas with our worldwide partners and their teams – through Slack, and through online and in person Seminars.
- A competitive salary, and all the tools you need to be successful in the role.

If you are an engineering professional with an aptitude for excellent customer and supplier relations, this position will be relevant to you. If you're seeking a career move that requires diligence, proactivity, and drive, and where the rewards are hugely satisfying, then you should definitely apply!

Please complete the short website form and attach your CV.

We look forward to receiving your application.